

Copper Age Man Found Frozen in Glacier (1991)

What major event happened on this date?

On September 19, 1991, Erica and Helmut Simon from Nuremberg, Germany were descending from the Final peak in the Tisenjoch area of the Otzal Alps. When they decided to take a shortcut off the beaten path. When they did so, they noticed something brown sticking out of the ice. Upon further inspection the Simons discovered that it was a human corpse. Although they could see the back of the head, arms, and back. The bottom of the torso was still embedded in the ice.

How did this event impact or effect the people of the country?

Some family members have told reporters that Loy suffered from s hereditary blood disease (which cause blood clots to form). First diagnosed about 12 years ago. When Loy first began to work on the iceman. Loy was writing a book about his work on otzi at the time of his death. His family members cannot find the file on his computer. In that time lots and lots of people claim that they were the one who found the copper man that died in Glacier.

From my research, what other interesting details did I learn about this event?

In my research I learn many things about my topic (The Copper Age Man Found Frozen in Glacier). All the research I did really help me with my topic. There are so many different website that has many different things that talks about my topic. In all of those website I went to I learn more and more about my topic. The interesting details about (The Copper Age Man found frozen in Glacier) is when they found him then many years past people started to claim that their the one who found the man.

What were my sources, how many did I use, and why do I believe they were reliable?

The resources that I use is on the bottom of the page. I used three resources. The reason why I picked those three is because it's not like bad website like Wikipedia. People can just change the information to a fake one, so that's why I didn't use that. I used a government one because people can't change the information. If you use website that anyone can't go and change things its good because you will know that those information are true (don't use Wikipedia). That's why I used this resources because it has good information's and it really help with my work.
